Psoriasis Cure Now was launched in January 2005 in order to advocate for a greater share of federal research funding for psoriasis and psoriatic arthritis, encourage patients to gain access to existing treatment options, educate patients about the diseases and remove the stigma of living with these conditions. Among one of the organization's highest priorities, the group visits with members of Congress to educate them about the disease and call for additional research funding. Additionally, Psoriasis Cure Now hosts Podcasts on living with psoriasis featuring patients and physicians on its website.
